

Week 8: Industrial Revolution, 1750-1914, Part I

Key point: The Industrial Revolution was the most significant development in human history since the Agricultural Revolution. It radically altered the way humans lived and worked.

- It changed production – Mechanization of Production
- It changed how we worked – Factory system
- It changed where we live – Urbanization

Question: Why was the Industrial Revolution the most significant development in human history since the Agricultural Revolution?